PREFACE

The following pages describe the several collections of coins, which are so diversified in their character that I hope every one may find some item to interest him and on which he will make a bid. In the Harmer collection is to be noted an unusual number of Dollars prior to 1804, which are certainly becoming more and more scarce and consequently increasing in price. This may also be said of his lot of Half Cents. The line of $3 gold pieces in the Washington collection and the Pioneer Gold are worthy of attention, especially the $5 North Carolina. C. Bechtler, assayer, $21½, C. Bechtler, same as sold for $135 at Zabriskie sale; the $5 and $21½ Mormon, both finer than usual. The 1796 Half Dollar is a gem worthy of advanced collectors' attention. New England N. E. Shilling is most desirable. 1783 Washington Cent in gold. An unusual offering is the great number of U. S. Cents in the Blair collection, while in the collection of the late George Heaton, of the Mint, Birmingham, we have examples he struck in proof condition of Canadian coins and six specimens of the Side View of the Bank of Montreal; the ½ Penny of 1845 of extreme rarity and which was in an envelope marked "Not for Sale." The Token of 1755 is, I believe, here offered for the first time. The Indian Peace Medal of And. Jackson and the Hudson Bay Company are worthy of especial notice.

Every coin or medal is guaranteed genuine indefinitely. Bids will be executed by me for the usual 10 per cent. of the amount purchased. Collectors will oblige me by examining their bids before sending in, so as to exclude errors. Make your bid at so much each piece, no matter how many there may be in the lot (except where lot is especially stated in catalogue).

I have endeavored to accurately describe the coins, noting defects, not overrating nor underrating the condition, and I hope my efforts will prove satisfactory to bidders. The coins to be sold each day will be on exhibition in the Art Gallery, second floor of the auction house, from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. No lots exhibited during sale unless by special request in a few instances.

The auctioneers reserve the right to request a deposit from a bidder. Bills are payable at termination of the sale, and goods bought delivered. Those persons bidding through me and whose responsibility is known will have their goods forwarded at the earliest practicable time, but I must request strangers to include reference from their bankers. Persons making bids under fancy names of companies will have to send a 25 per cent. cash deposit. No lots are separated, and as the sale progresses at the rate of 200 to 250 lots an hour it is advantageous to the bidder to have his catalogue marked with his limits before the sale.
